What is Activation Lock? A Simple Look

Activation Lock is a single feature of Apple Find My Device. It turns on automatically whenever Find My [device] is activated. Hence, activation locks ensure that your device information and data are kept safe at all times. They also stop anyone who steals your phone from reactivating it even after erasing it. If an iPhone is erased without entering the correct Apple ID and password, the activation lock screen will appear as below:

Pros of Turning on Activation Lock

If your device is covered by AppleCare+ Theft & Loss package, you're required to have Find My Device enabled on your iPhone, iPad, or iPod touch at the time it was lost or stolen.

You can be able to track the physical location of your device, make the device play a sound or activate Lost Mode via Find My iPhone.

If the activation lock is turned on, you can reset your iPhone password via iCloud.

How to Remove Activation Lock without Previous Owner?

If the iPhone is locked to the owner, it means that you or someone else's iCloud account is still linked to the factory erased iPhone, iPad, or iPod touch. The official way to remove this barrier is by providing the password to the linked iCloud account without which no one has access to the device.

Fortunately, we'll be showing you unofficial ways to remove the Find My iPhone activation lock without previous owner.

Method 2: Online Activation Lock Removal Services

Some online services claim to remove activation locks such as iCloudin, Bypass iCloud Activation DNS, and Applephoneunlock. Let's now discuss some of these online services and a few cons and pros of using them. Let's take the online service IMEIUnlockSIM as an example.

This is an online service that offers iCloud unlocking services for an $18.95 fee. The iCloud unlock delivery time is 5 to 10 days, and the service has some positive reviews online.

remove activation lock online service

Pros:

It works for iPhone activation lock removal.

It has some good reviews online.

Cons:

It delivered as promised but doesn't work on recent iPhones and iPads.

It takes a very long time to unlock iCloud, usually 5-10 days.

Method 3: Use DNS Bypass to Achieve Activation Lock Removal iCloud DNS Bypass is another good method for unlocking activation locked iPhone or iPad. This solution is more of a manual process, you'll be the one doing everything by yourself but the technique is not difficult for a tech guru.

iCloud DNS bypass

Pros:

iCloud DNS Bypass can be manually operated from your Wi-Fi settings.

It offers you good features and functions of your iPhone.

Cons:

The success rate of this method is low.

It's hard for non-technical clients to operate.

The method does not unlock permanently. The activation lock will reappear after restarting.

Method 4: The Official Approach - Apple Support

You can also contact Apple Support to turn off Activation Lock without previous owner from your iPhone or iPad if you have proof of ownership of the device. Before you call Apple support by phone, please prepare the following details.

Apple AppleCare agreement number.

Your device serial number.

Your phone receipt.

Apple Support

Pros:

It's easy and free to help.

If you have the details they want, your device activation lock will be removed without any function limitations.

Cons:

Apple Support doesn't cover iPhone purchased from secondhand vendors.

Even if you provide every detail, it is still subject to Apple Support's discretion to unlock your device.

Bonus. Remove Activation: If You Can Get in Touch with The Previous Owner

If your device is still linked to someone else's iCloud account and you can contact them in anyway, then if the person is willing to help, tell him/her to follow any of the steps outlined below:

#1. Remove Activation Lock with Screen Passcode

If the previous owner is close to you physically, you can easily walk up to him/her and ask the person to enter his/her screen password to unlock the device and then exit his Apple ID.

Remove activation lock with screen passcode

#2. Remotely Remove Activation Lock through iCloud

If the previous owner is not physically reachable and wouldn't agree to give you his/her iCloud account details, then ask him/her to follow these steps:

Step 1. The previous owner signs in iCloud.

Step 2. Go to Find My iPhone > All Devices and select the device to unlock.

Step 3. Click Erase Device and after erasing, click Remove from Account.

Remove activation lock through iCloud

Once the above steps are complete, the activation lock will be removed and you can use your own Apple ID.
